NORTH SKY'S TOM JORGENSEN PROMOTED TO MANAGING DIRECTOR

Minneapolis, MN – North Sky Capital (“North Sky”), a pioneer in impact investing, is pleased to announce that Tom Jorgensen has been promoted to Managing Director. Effective with the promotion, Tom will join the investment committee for North Sky’s impact secondaries funds, the Clean Growth Fund series. The firm’s Clean Growth Funds provide liquidity solutions to impact funds, companies and investors across four key investment themes – cleantech / climatech, food / agriculture, waste / water and healthcare.

“Tom has been an outstanding team member and has been making significant contributions to the firm’s success year after year,” said North Sky CEO, Scott Barrington. “Tom’s promotion has been earned and is well deserved.” Tom is a graduate of Gustavus Adolphus College and joined North Sky in the summer of 2010. Since then, he has steadily advanced through the organization, expanding his responsibilities particularly within the firm’s impact secondaries business.

“From early in his tenure with us, it was clear that Tom was capable of making significant contributions to the overall growth of our firm, and we began developing a plan for his long-term career with North Sky,” said Managing Director, Danny Zouber. “Tom played an integral role in shaping our impact secondaries investment strategy, and we look forward to building upon these successes with him in this senior position.”
